This online inservice will explore how learners with reading differences experience successful outcomes from instruction that respond to their individualized levels. Multi-tiered systems of support for whole class, small groups, and individualized instruction will be outlined. Techniques on how to implement literacy strategies to honor each learner’s literacy skills across the curriculum will be discussed.

Participants will gain knowledge and skills in:

1. multi-tiered interventions that benefit learners with reading differences;
2. proactive, evidence based literacy representations, expressions, and engagements;
3. differentiation of literacy instruction;
4. whole class, small group, and individualized instructional models such as direct skill instruction, guided practice and learning centers.

This inservice is online from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.
