Culture plays a role not only in communicating and receiving information, but also in shaping the thinking process of groups and individuals. Culturally responsive teaching that acknowledges, responds to, and celebrates fundamental cultures offers full, equitable access to education for students from all cultures. As culturally responsive educators, we recognize the importance of including students' cultural identities in all aspects of learning, thereby enriching classroom experiences and keeping students engaged. This in person inservice will provide participants with opportunities to examine their own culture and the cultures of the students they teach.

Participants will gain knowledge and skills in:

1. understanding what culturally responsive education is and why it matters,
2. identifying the elements needed to become a culturally responsive educator.

This inservice is in person from 9:00 a.m. to 10:30 a.m.
